

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

The present invention provides a method and system for the transmission of text, sound and images between a sender and a receiver location for receiving coordinate or location coded transmitted information, and providing text, sound and images by processing said transmitted information via paired coordinate information in a location database.